List of the birds seen during the Fixed Departure Tour with Extension to Serra da Canastra National Park

Fixed Departure - September 12 - 21, 2008

Extension - September 22 - 25, 2008

This was certainly a memorable trip for the six birders who joined our fixed departure tour combined with the extension to Serra da Canastra, with 392 species SEEN in 14 days by the group and some truly unforgettable birding experiences that we shared. At the Atlantic Rain Forest we found the endangered Salvadori's Antwren, stood only 3 meters from a singing Pavonine Cuckoo that was almost too close for the focus of our binoculars and had excellent views of a couple of Blue-bellied Parrots that seemed as curious about us as we were marveled by them, not to mention an impressive 13 species of Woodpeckers including the discreet Helmeted Woodpecker. The timing seemed perfect as we moved to the Cerrado (Brazilian Savanna) of Serra da Canastra National Park as migratory birds such as the Cock-tailed Tyrant were flying all around us and we were able to locate many Cerrado specialties such as the Gray-backed Tachuri, Sharp-tailed Tyrant, Collared Crescentchest, the rare Sickle-winged Nightjar (close to our feet) and nearly at the end of the tour we were treated to 07 Brazilian Mergansers (01 adult and 06 ducklings) swimming only 10 meters away from us allowing excellent studies of this rare species. But the tour would certainly not have been the same without the fantastic views of the Manned Wolf we had at night.
